Japan Serves Full Meal Before Tea Is Offered

In its early days the tenbush was called cha and in early English writings is referred to variously as cha, tehn and chaw and later is called tay and tee. Oddly enough, states a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, the tea shrub belongs to the plant family known as theacene. From the name cha is also derived chanoyu, the Japanese word for a time bonored institution, the ten ceremony, rooted in the principles of the Buddhist sect. Zen, and founded on admiration of the benutiful in daly life such as cooking, etc. This ceremony takes place in the chasekl (tea-room). which is usually about nine feet square or smoller, to suggest genteel poverty to the guest although no expense is spared in the interior. Each guest crawls into the room through a small door about three feet square and finds an al cove filled with expensive ornaments and a fireplace for steeping ten sunk into the floor.

Acording to the rules of best Japanese etiquette a full meal is served before the pouring and drink ing of the ten. This custom was founded under the Shogon Yoshimass about the middle of the Fifteenth century and atill flourishes among those who remain faithful cases beadaches, car sickness, your friends of their worst driving to and cherish the old spirit of these drowsiness. Fortunate enemy—carbon monoxide! Japan.

What Does America Ask of Congress?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic-

With the new year comes a new session of Congress. What does the average American ask of it?

Basically his demands are modest -and few. All are in conformity with the rights and powers granted him under the Constitution.

He wants those rights respected and preserved.

He wants his collective interests. as a worker, an earner and a taxpayer, considered above and ahead of the demands of organized minorities operating as political pressure

He wants his national Legislators to exhibit those qualities of responsibility and self-reliance expected of the chosen representatives of a free people. He has seen enough of rubber-stamp Congresses, eager and willing to enact hasty measures at the behest of appointed bureau chiefs, in whose selection the voters have no choice and over whose actions they exercise no control.

He wants Congress to know and respect the Federal Constitution-to refrain from legislation which vio-

He wants Congress to remember that public debts created by reckless expenditures and waste must be paid out of taxes-clipped from the worker's earnings or the earnings of his children and grandchildren. He wants it to stop mortgaging our

He wants members of Congress. whatever their party affiliations, to think of the Nation as a whole, rather than in terms of political

In brief, he wants courage, reason he asks Congress to assure these things. It is a fair request. If the members of Congress will heed it. pends not only our national recovery, but the future scenarity of

Two outstanding examples of this were the recent retirement of the mayor of Pelping, known to oppose the autonomy movement, and the return of Chinese Minister of War Ho Ying-chin from Peping to Nanking, both at the suggestion of the Japanese officials.

Nanking's protests to Tokyo are ignored because of Japan's insistence that the autonomy movement is strictly of Chinese origin. Yet

What Japan Wants. What does all this "autonomy" business mean for Japan, for North China and the rest of the world? For Japan it means political economic and industrial control of another great slice of territory that once belonged to China. There is much cotton in Hopel and opportunity for planting more, to take the place of cotton that Japan must now import from the United States | condition of several of China's and from India. There is iron ore army officials have confiscated Cal- it is known that in all of these and coal, vastly important in buildnese school books and removed autonomous governments planned. Ing the naval parity which Japan is from them passages which might be the administrations will have to be demanding from Great Britain and the United States, although not cordingly, at a nod from Japanese provinces to form an autonomous ton conference in 1922, was formed as the organic international law to apply to all future controversies in the Far East. All of the signatories are bound to respect not only the sovereignty and territorial integrity of China, but the administrative integrity as we'l. Secretary Hull claims that this provision is directly involved at the present time, because "an effort is being made to bring about a substantial change in the political status and northern provinces."

> Other provisions of the treaty bind the signatories not to support any agreements designed to create "spheres of influence" for their nationals. And still another requires them not to seek "any arrangement which might purport to establish in favor of their interests any general superiority of rights with respect to commercial or economic development of any designated region of China."

Claim Treaty Was Misnomer. Japan's claim is that such a thing as the territorial and administrative integrity of China never existed.

Political economists believe that the best any central Chinese government ever will do is administer a part of China. Much of what is known as China is poorer than even the heavily populated cities, even though its population is comparatively sparse. In five of the northwestern provinces, which make up per cent of the total area, there is only 5 per cent of the population, and because of the poor quality of the land this population is difficult to support.

Also, much of China Is too backward to be governed well. For Instance, there is the province of Szechnen: It has 50 000,000 Inhabttants and not a single mile of rallroad! The Communist threat is always present, the Communist army in rising hursing been estimated at HARRY, Rut the Communists have virtually passed as a political party to be reclimed with as they were before the downfull of their leader. sordid form of pessimism with revolutionary dangers.

Employment insurance, old age pensions, and other solutions of the problem of uncertainty have been proposed. But all of these will ultimately fall, for they are powerless to restore confidence in one's self. The feeling of certainty is the result of confidence. When confidence in that individual security which guarantees to every person the Inalienable rights of active, useful citizenship is destroyed, we again face the danger of revolution,

Now that the feeling of security in the banks and in many economic values has been restored; the next step necessary is to restore to every person a sense of confidence and security in himself,

There is innate ability the competitive economic world has never discovered. A RACE track will put Springdale on the map," Roaring Reggie shouts. "Folks who follow the ponies always spend plenty coln and they might as well spend It here!"

"But I have been given to understand," Mayor Flandreau replies, "that a race track always breaks a town."

"Is Saratoga broke?" Reggle sputters. "Is Louisville or Miami in the poorhouse? No, Mr. Flandreau, horse racing will bring Springdale millions!"

When the people of the commonwealth of Massachusetts vote in favor of horse racing, we go up there right away with the intention of building a track. But after we visit twenty towns in six months and cannot get a local license, we are absolutely disgusted. And that is why Roaring Reggie comes out of the office of the mayor of Springdale with fire in his eye.

Right after that we buy a large piece of land, put up a clubhouse along the main highway and lay out a race track behind it. When the mayor asks on opening day what we have built, Reggle tells him it is just a private residence. And he points to the sign over the main entrance which reads: "Smith Family Reunion. Every Day-Rain or Shine."

"Everybody by the name of Smith can come and be entertained," Reggle explains.

"But you cannot get many people that way," says the mayor, "for after all, there are not so many Smiths."

For answer Reggle takes the mayor out to the crowded grandstand. "All of these five thousand people are Smith by name," Reggie states. "At least when the attendant at the door ask them if their ing to give the fair city name is Smith, it is a very pecu- dale 5 per cent of the to Har thing but each and every one ons sold res."

"Then it seems to me you are spending a lot of money just to entertain all these Smiths," says the mayor. "How can you afford to do it?"

"It so happens," Reggle replies, "that out of our generosity we let everybody purchase one share of common stock in this enterprise for only one dollar. When they leave they return the stock but somehow or other our dumb cashlers forget to give them back their dollars." "I have been advised," the mayor ing license?"

A clap of thunder and the swish of a wind gust through the birch tops checked Garth's banter. He spoke a quick order: "Leanto the blanket on that knoll between the trees, front this way."

A glance at the onrushing black clouds of the thunderstorm sent even Huxby hurrying to help the others. While they tied the upper corners of the blanket with rawhide thongs and weighted the back edge with logs, Garth pulled the canoe ashore and placed it bottom up over the smoke racks.

When, three hours later, the crashing thunderstorm passed over and the heavy downpour of rain ceased, all the party were wet from the drlp through the blanket. But the fire still smoldered and the half-smoked meat was dry under the canoe.

"Had you been used to canoeing," Garth said, "we need not have lost all this time. But you'll get enough drenchings later on. Wring out the blanket and fetch the ment."

He launched the canoe again, unaided, and directed the others to their places. All had to kneel, facing the narrower prow of the double-stemmed craft. They understood when a few strokes of his paddle brought the cance to the foot of the pool. For a long two miles they crouched low in the bottom while the frail craft ing his limit, he headed ashore, glanced down the foaming, swirling torrent of white water.

At the foot of the rapids, he headed it alongside a bit of gravelly beach and helped Mr. Ramill and Lilith ashore. When he remarked that there was gold in the gravel, Huxby nearly upset the canoe in his haste to get out and look.

"Gold! Why didn't we bring the gold pan?"

Garth laughed and stretched out on the dry grass above the gravel.

"Squaw!" She Murmured. Squaw!"

"Gallant gentleman, your lady is building the fire."

"Den't mind him, Vivian," Lillth chimed in on the banter. "You can use the cup for panning. I need only the pot to boll Alan's ten."

CHAPTER VII -

The Gaffed Wolf.

MR. RAMILL'S good-bumor over his fall into the muskeg peol had not been forced. It was based upon his feeling of physical wellbeing.

Instead of having been broken down by the hard toll and exposure of the trip and that severe lesson in the meaning of famine, he had belt again and dipped his paddle come through it all in even better in his strong, steady, seemingly tire- shape than before the start from the lost valley. The days of starvation had completed Nature's raid upon the degenerate fats and polsons of his once obese body.

There had fellowed the feasts of tender bear-cub meat. He was again putting on weight, but it was hard muscle.

He was paddling as vigorously if not as skillfully as his daughter, when, mid morning of the twentyfourth day from the valley, the canoe neared a wooded point that rose well above the swamps, Garth called out from the stern of the canoe:

"If you want a surprise, friends, shut your eyes while we take 10 strokes.''

He knew that Huxby would keep on staring ahead. But he guessed right about Lilith and her father. At the end of the tenth stroke, the girl flung up her paddle and uttered a skrick of joyous amazement: "The river! The river!"

Close upon the cry came the deeplunged shout of her father: "By the Almighty, you've done it, Garth! We're out."

Huxby continued to stare fixedly ahead at the mighty flood of the Mackenzle. He was the last to speak: "Out of the muskegs; but a ong way from out of this Explorer II Riging from the Stratobowl.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, 1) C.—WNO Service. THE Explorer II, balloon of the National Geographic society-

ormy air curps stratosphere flight, which rose to a record altitude of more than Thirst feet on Armistice day, was the largest free balloon ever built, Commanded by Capt. Albert W. Stevens, who also was the scientific observer, and plloted by Capt. Orvil Anderson, both of the army air corps, the balloon soared more than two miles farther into the upper air than the previous official attitude record (61.237 feet), made by Lieut, Commander T. G. W. Settle of the navy and Mal. Chester Fordney of the marine corps, on November 20, 1933. The unofficial balloon altitude record prior to the flight of the Explorer II was 72.200 feet, made by Russian hallomists, The crow of three men saw littled when: the gondola crashed on descent. Sunny, Calm and Cold.

In the stratosphere, it has been discovered, continuous sunshine reigns, with no storms, clouds, rains or fogs. But-it is about 80 degrees below zero! Also in this paradoxical region of the upper air the sky is so blue that it is strangely faint and feeble.

No summer resort on earth can equal the sunshine and calm of stratosphere days. The sun shines from rising to setting every day. with a brilliance unknown on earth, rapidly, but those weary muscles for there is little air to dim its rays. Practically no water vapor exists in the stratosphere, so there can be no clouds to shut out the sun, and hence no rain or fog. The turbulent air currents nearer the earth also are missing, so storms are non-existent.

But even with this perfect weather overhead, the stratosphere is far from being an ideal vacation spot. It is as cold as the desolate polar regions of the earth. A temperature of nearly 80 degrees below zero Fahrenhelt was recorded in 1034, both on the first National Geographic-army flight to the stratosphere and in the Antarctic on the second Byrd expedition. And again on November 11, 1935, the Explorer II found a similar temperature. The air is so thin in the stratosphere that a man would suffocate and die there unless artificially sup-

At first he had tried to swim toward a clump of trees he could see on the opposite bank above the point where he had entered the water, but to do this he had to swim against the current, and he soon found that he hadn't the strength to do this. Then he turned and headed for a point down the lings of the ancients wer river. This made the swimming and handed down from ga easier, for the current helped him to generation. What They Want to Read. CULVER CITY, CALIF.

Beautiful actress mysteriously dead. Crazed worker turns peaceful street into a shambles. Mother of three hanged for murder. Nurse suspected of inflicting "mercy deaths" on helpless patients. Confession by Hauptmann predicted. Rich man's son kidnaped. Former President Hoover tries to make humorous speech. . .

All these tragic things on the same front page. Earnest thinkers who'll accuse the newspapers of sensationalism for featuring distressful happenings, forget that, to live, newspapers must print what people want to read about, not what professional Irvin S. Cobb uplifters and most publishers, and many editors, would like them to read. To publish any other sort of newspaper for popular consumption would require an endowment fund bigger than the average reformer's ignorance of human nature.

Extra: In the excitement, one more saddening headline almost was overlooked: Governor Talmadge of Georgia still thinks he's running for President.

The Living Dead.

Doctor Carrel Is a bit late with his theory that human beings might be dried out and filed away for a matter of 200 years or so, and then brought back to life again. Only the other night I was speaking at a dinner where there were many who must have undergone the processonly they hadn't been brought back

It used to be that I had better results, talking at banquets. But lately my audiences and I seem to be drifting apart, Or maybe it's merely poor old Mr. Cobb that's drifting apart.

Seriously, I think it would be a mistake to dehydrate a fellow the way Doctor Carrel suggests and set him aside in some quiet ratproof place for a couple of centuries and then return him to consciousness. He probably wouldn't notice much change in radio gags—they'll still be using the same ones ...but, judg Ing by the present rate of progress think what taxes will be then!

Peace Prize for Sale.

STICKING up their heads just long enough to announce there'd be no peace prize for 1935, the judges ducked right back into the sub-cellar.

At the aroment, all was quiet and harmony. With the exceptions of one large three-ring war and several smaller ones, and riots of one or more of the standard varieties-racial, religious, political, industrial industrial or economic-going on simultaneously in seven major cities on four continents, which comes pretty close to being almost all the continents we have.

But before withholding the award, why didn't the Judges take a quick glance in the direction of Greenland? There hasn't been a harsh word out of Greenland all year.

Formation of Grand Canyon

The Grand canyon has been worn by the censeless flow of the silt laden Colorado river, by the storm waters that occasionally fall inte the canyon, and by weathering proc esses. The most effective of these agencies has been the river itself However, it has not directly carvee the eanyon to its full width, nor cut the embayments that scallopthe rims of the plateaus. It has cut its way vertically downward, main taining its course almost without change. Meanwhile, the rocky walls of the canyon have been exposed to the destructive action of rain and rill, of frost and landslide, of wind and chemical action.

Bright Lights Affect Birds Observations show that birds are affected by Mumination. For example, on moonlit nights birds fly at a much higher altitude and, thereby, avoid collision with structures. The fact that they fly nearer the ground on dark nights is belleved to indicate that they utilize the glaw of artificial lights on human habitations, streets and electrie signs to guide them. Just how much the death of the birds is due to use of lights as alds to flight and just how much to a sort of flamelike attraction, as in the case of useths and other insects, is a matter for conjecture and further ob-Bervathin.

Mule's Intelligence Said to Exceed Other Animals

Mules have been in every war fought anywhere on the globe. They have drugged cunnon through swamps where a modern tractor would succumb to the litters: they have led charges up mountainsides where goats would hesitate, then they have stood with one long ear forward and one backward listening to the formalities of a foe's surrender and have brayed in triumph.

Great credit has been accorded the dog, the horse, the chimpanzee, for intelligence. But don't be fooled by that, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. The dog, the horse and the chimpanzee will do a lot of foolish things under the urge of foolish humans. Not the mule! He won't drink where he should not or when he should not; he won't venture upon an unsafe bridge; he won't overent even in a field of green corn; he knows when he has done a day's work, and he knows when the sun is too hot for safety. If he could talk and would, which | bacon drippings before baking in the we doubt, he could give world-wide ! advice to these who use him.

Yes, the mule is stubborn, and, just possibly, that is because he knows what he wants when he wants it, and, being unable to put it into words, he simply stands and waits until human intelligence catches on.

Picked Longest Psalm

The Covenanters, in the time of the Civil wars were exceedingly fond of singing psalms. When the great Montrose was taken prisoner, his chaptain, Wishart, the elegant historian of his deeds, shared the same fate with his patron, and was condemned to the same punishment. Being 'desired on the scaffold to name what psalm he wished to have sung, he selected the one hundred and nineteenth, consisting of 22 stanzas. In this he was guided by God's good providence, for before two-thirds of the psalm was sung, a pardon arrived.

Juries Are Costly

Those who favor the abolition of Juries frequently point out, among other reasons, that juries are not only unreasonable, but costly." In ; one case in which 789 men were examined in order to get an unprejudiced panel of 12, the jury acquitted the necused in the face of the clearest evidence of murder. In another case in which 4,821 men were questioned for fitness, the jury fees amounted to $13,000,-Collier's Weekly.

Halley's Comet So Named

for English Astronomer Halley's comet was so named for Edmund Halley, English astronomer, notes the Indianapolls News. He discovered that the orbits of the comets of 1531 and 1607 were similar to that of 1682, which he himself observed, and thereupon concluded they were the same. He predicted the comet's return about 1758, and called upon posterity to record and verify his prediction. It arrived at perihelion on March 12, Investigation showed many references to the periodic appearance throughout the Christian era. In 1835 it returned, and was next expected in 1910.
